According to the draft info number (202-724-0424), 19 and 20 year old men and women will be required to register if the 2 bills now before Congress are passed: and if a draft bill is also passed later on, there will be no student or occupational deferments. One way to avoid the draft will be to obtain a conscientious objector status. The first step you must take is to file a C.O. card with the Central Committee for Conscientious Objectors. C.O. cards can be obtained by writing New York C.A.R.D., 15 Rutherford Place, New York City 10003.

The best thing to do is to join in the effort to keep the draft from returning.

The Coalition Against Registration and The Draft meets Monday nights, 7:30 at 15 Rutherford Place. 212-475-5654. Volunteer your time. Keep the draft from returning. Write your congressman. Organize your block.

Dear Listener/Sponsors:

For eight years over WBAI, my program, In the Spirit, has been a regular Sunday morning space for search, discussion and celebration concerning that dimension of human nature (and of the universe itself) which can be called "spiritual". The program has not just been an expression of my personal, subjective search but has also accurately reflected a widely shared mood in our culture. In the Spirit has documented the growing mood of openness to spiritual quest, both through the mystical practices of sacred traditions and the rich possibilities uncovered by the human potential movement.

The movement of inner quest during the 70's was subject to as many abberations as the other social movements which emerged around the same time. Some of what was foolish found its way onto In the Spirit but also a great deal that was of authentic value. Often a powerfully moving atmosphere was felt by New Yorkers on Sunday mornings as we spoke live over WBAI with a broad spectrum of cultural/spiritual figures from Allan Watts to Mother Theresa of Calcutta, from Ram Dass to the Dalai Lama, from Shlomo Carlebach to Daniel Berrigan.

Now the program is transmuting for the new decade (as all of us must). Called Body/Mind/Spirit, it leaves the warmly protected space of Sunday mornings to be broadcast every afternoon, Monday through Friday, from 1:00 until 2:00. The program is subtitled, "A New Integration for the 80's", and will document the new spiritual activism and mature commitment which concerns itself not only with mystical experiences for the individual but also with the healing, integration and illumination of the society and the planet. We are no longer focusing only on the inner quest but on the discovery in all fields of the mystery, the irreducable value, and even the sacredness of body/mind/spirit wherever it is found on the planet or in the universe. It is not a separate five senses or a separate reasoning faculty or a separate soul, but a living whole which we all are. The deeper experience of this wholeness is a source both of spontaneous joy and a profound sense of responsibility.

Join me as we begin to explore the wholeness of body/mind/spirit with guests from all fields who are socially and spiritually committed, open-minded, loving and insightful. And if you want to know where I'm coming from, Doubleday has published in paperback a book of my essays called Coming Home: The Experience of Enlightenment in Sacred Traditions.

in friendship, LEX HIXON

9:00 INTERNATIONAL WOMEN'S DAY

On March 8 1975, 5000 women and some men who supported their demands marched down 5th Avenue to Union Square. The action of these women in New York City, like many similar actions across the country represented a new phase for the modern women's movement. It also represented a revival of the celebration of International Womens Day.

International Womens Day, which grew out of American Womens Day, was first proposed at the Second Conference of Socialist Women in Copenhagen in 1910 by German Socialist Clara Zeitkin. The resolution was approved by all the women present. The slogan for the new day was "The vote will unite our strength in the struggle for socialism."

During World War I, International Womens Day became associated with the pacifist movement. In 1916 when American women first named the last Sunday in February International Womens Day, Americans took up the cry "down with militarism" and in 1917 International Womens Day was organized as a mass demonstration against the war.

On Saturday March 8th the Women's Department and the International affairs Dept of WBAI will present a day of programming passing issues of importance to women around the world, Programs will include: An Interview with Amy Swerdlow on the History of International Womens Day, Blanche Cooke on Crystal Eastman, Lela Secour: Diary of a Pacifist Feminist Women under Colonialism; Women in Latin America, The issue of abortion, Amnesty International report on Women Prisoners, Women in Revolutionary Movements, Women in the Military, Women in the Pacifist Movement. 9:30 POETRY
John Ashbery and Ann Lauterbach read from Ashbery's LITANY. Perhaps our finest contemporary poet, John Ashbery is the author of many books of poems including Some Trees, The Tennis Court Oath, The Double Dream of Spring, and Houseboat Days. He has been awarded the Pulitzer Prize, The National Book Award, and National Book Critics Circle Award for Self-Portrait in a Convex Mirror. Most recently Penguin has just published As We Know, which includes the long poem Litany.

Litany is written in double columns—two voices meant to be "overheard" simultaneously. Here as in other shorter lyrics in the book is a revelation of the self's progress toward identity—sometimes alone and in silence—sometimes through the cacaphony and business of a big modern city.

"A MUSICAL THOUGHT / DON'T BLAME IT ON THE BOOGIE"

For the society of the 80's, the need to define the socio-cultural-economical phenomenon termed "Disco", arises not merely to defend the relevance of where disco stems from, but to establish a platform for facts concerning Black Culture.

Having evolved from a period where Black music was regarded as "race music", and categorized as such on most radio dials, Soul, the coined phrase for Rhythm and Blues of the sixties, experienced a wider patronage amongst the Nat'l record and radio audience. Through the administrative and production genius of such artist as Berry Gordy, Thom Bell, Barry White, James Brown, Issac Hayes, McFadden and Whitehead and Gamble and Huff, the music industry underwent a housepainting in color dynamics. And with the ability of Black Culture to improvise, escalate and extend its basic premises with everreaching interpretations, it was made clear to the industry monopolists that Black participation was here to stay . . . for awhile.

But as Blacks acquired an increasing share of the profits reaped in each year, the music began to seek marketing areas where Blacks could not participate. And with the success of "Do the Hustle", a one man production by Van McCoy, the race was on. The former superstar producers and artists; B. Gordy, Aretha Franklyn, etc. lost working status to a music culture that was primarily computer-processed. Thus with the release of "Saturday Night Fever", America entered the stage of nationally accepted disco.

But music with no improvisation gives way to stagnation. Soon the music industry started closing its disco production units. Only those concerned with Black cultural/historical existence were interested in the value of Rhythm and Blues and exploring assumptions that this musical form was responsible for the emergence of disco.

"Don't Blame it on the Boogie" will look at the "Disco phenomena" through a coolage of interviews, statements, utterances with producers, artists, critics, promoters and other representatives of the music industry and will bring to WBAI's listeners a platform to connect anti-disco sentiment with the realities of socio-cultural-economics of life in the eighties.

This program is a coordinated effort of the Music and International Affairs Depts., and is produced by L. Kofi Pendergrass.
